Resources council approves Dupont permit, state agencies foresee no future conflicts

Council members vote as expected

by David Pierson
Long Beach Bureau

The Mississippi Marine Resources Council (MMRC), as expected Tuesday, approved a permit to allow the DuPont Company to discharge effluents into the Bay of St. Louis from its proposed multi-million dollar pigment plant in Delisle.

Two weeks ago the council delayed action on the permit for the purpose of obtaining additional information on the effluent's effect on marine life. Gerald Blessey, council member and one of the founders of the council, said that the purpose of the delay was to find out "how sound the experimentation and the thought process was."

At the hearing Tuesday, David A. Nelson, project manager for DuPont's titanium dioxide plant, told the council that he did not believe the effluent would endanger shellfish. When asked if he had any data to support that statement, other than the DuPont-financed Gulf Coast Research Laboratory study, Nelson said, "Not specifically related to the toxicity of shellfish. But we have had other studies on the aquatic life, such as fathead minnows."

The permit gives DuPont the right to dredge a three-foot deep trench across 40 feet of salt marsh and 1,500 feet across the bottom of the Bay of St. Louis for the purpose of installing an outfall line. The permit requires that DuPont restore the marsh area by sprigging or sodding.

According to the permit, the temperature of the effluent must not exceed 95 degrees. The permit also stipulates that the ratio of chloride to sulfate salts in the effluent must be compatible to the normal life of the flora and fauna.

DuPont must also report to the council on a quarterly basis the results of its biological monitoring program. Blessey had said earlier Tuesday that he expected the council to approve the permit but to place certain conditions "if the discharge is detected to seriously endanger marine life."

"Then," he said, "we would review the permit."

If DuPont wants to make substantial changes in the permit, a special meeting will be arranged Friday at 7 p.m. on the Coast. DuPont now only needs a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for placement of the discharge line.

Marine, human life responsibility divided

Officials for both the MMRC and the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission (MAWPCC) have said that they do not anticipate a confrontation between the two councils. The possibility of a conflict between the two permit boards surfaced when EPA officials, who have reviewed the MAWPCC permit, said that MAWPCC would reserve final judgment on the disposition of wastes.

The problem arises from the EPA's plans to establish new guidelines for titanium dioxide plants which would call for the construction of a waste treatment facility and the reduction of the waste that is injected into the deep well system.

Under the new guidelines, the MAWPCC will evaluate the treated waste to determine what additional effluent may be discharged into the Bay and what must be injected into the well. Up to now, however, the MAWPCC's judgments have been restricted to how water quality affects human life. Evaluation of the water quality's effect on marine life has been the responsibility of the MMRC.

Glen Woods, executive director of the MAWPCC, was asked if his council would study the treated wastes' effects on marine life, and he said, "we will probably have some study done in that area." He added, though, that the EPA's new guidelines should have already considered the marine life; and, therefore, the MAWPCC would probably not conduct extensive studies.

When asked if the MMRC would study the effect of the treated waste on marine life, even though the MAWPCC had final permitting authority, Gerald Blessey said that the MMRC can "review its permit at any time." He said that the MMRC probably did not have "exclusive jurisdiction" over marine life and that the MAWPCC would probably study the effects on the flora and fauna.

J. E. Thomas, director of the MMRC, said that there appeared to be the elements of a confrontation between the two sides, but he added, "Ultimately, I don't think it will be."

Finally, Woods said that he did not anticipate a conflict to arise. He said that his committee would welcome any help it would receive from the MMRC regarding the effects on marine life.

Creeping fog

Heavy masses of warm Gulf air meeting a cold front extending from Texas to the East coast brought dense fog to the Gulf Coast Sunday. The condition frustrated drivers from New Orleans to Florida and enveloped residents of Bay St. Louis in a deep shroud most of this week. On the beachfront, where the fog was thickest, motorists could barely distinguish the steeple of Our Lady of the Gulf Church in the Bay. The forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with scattered showers and highs mostly in the 70's after predawn lows mostly in the 50's.

Sad stories get big money Mayor Saucier tells aldermen

Discussing a federal grant that is beginning to sound more like a modern version of the old "Queen-for-a-day Show", Mayor Steve Saucier of Pass Christian said at Tuesday's special session of the board of aldermen that the largest share of the $262,000 made available under the Community Development Act of 1974 will go to the city that "tells the saddest story."

The board of aldermen and the mayor then nominated 14 people to fill the five-member committee which will help the city get its story straight. The members of the board will meet with the nominees this week to see which candidates would be willing to serve.

The committee members, said Saucier, will be selected at Tuesday's regular city council meeting. Next Thursday at 7:30 p.m., the board of aldermen, the mayor, and the new committee will hold a public forum for the purpose of hearing what projects the people want funded.

Under the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) grant, the cities of Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Pass Christian, Long Beach, Wiggins, and possibly Harrison County will be competing against each other for portions of the $262,000 in federal monies made available under this program. The program is designed to eliminate categorical grants which give to the city money to use for a specific purpose. Under the SMSA program, each municipality must file a pre-application by March 1 to show why the city needs the money. "It is possible," said Saucier, "that Pass Christian could get all the money."

The criteria for determining which city will get what monies is as follows: the extent of substandard housing in the city, the extent of poverty in the area, the percentage of unemployment in the area, urgent community needs, and the extent of overcrowding in the area.

In another matter to go before the special meeting of the board of aldermen, the board upheld Police Chief Edward Alley's dismissal of Detective Harold Henderson "for conduct unbecoming an officer."

Alley charged in the letter to Henderson, a copy of which was read to the board of aldermen, that Henderson was "a married man residing with a woman other than his wife." Alley contends that Henderson's domestic problems have interfered with duties. Henderson has ten days to appeal his dismissal to the city civil service commission.

L&N railroad seeking to transfer Bay rail service

By Dan Barber

The Mississippi Public Service Commission revealed this week that application has been filed by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company seeking authority to discontinue the agency, discontinue less-than-carload freight service and to remove the depot building at Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

Hardin Shattuck, Bay St. Louis resident and former head of the Rural Electric Association (now Coast Electric Power Association), said if the petition were granted it would spell disaster for Bay St. Louis industry. Without rail service, Shattuck said, Bay St. Louis industry would have nothing but truck or bus freight service.

David Screws, rate expert with the Southern Division of PSC, said that in their application, L&N asks to physically remove the depot, to transfer all business from the Bay St. Louis agency by and through the Gulfport office of L&N, and to discontinue less than carload freight service.

"Cars containing less than carload shipment for the financially responsible consignees at Bay St. Louis would be left in their track or team tracked for them to load," Screws said.

"Shippers of less than carload shipments from Bay St. Louis will order cars through the Gulfport, Miss. agent and will load shipments when car is placed."

Screws said that it would be left to L&N officials what to do with the depot should the application be granted, that they could raise the building, physically remove it or do whatever they wanted to with it. Screws said that the commission could put a condition on the building if there was public opposition to L&N removing it.

The Commission will take up the petition at its next regular meeting, Feb. 4 at 10 a.m., but Screws said the petition would only be called that date and no action taken. Screws said the Commission would place the case later in February for a full hearing of all protest, answers or other pleadings.

Reeves promises action

L&N track inspection reveals disrepair

A state Public Service Commission official declared Tuesday Louisville and Nashville railroad track lines running through Hancock County were in very dangerous states of disrepair and promised action would be forthcoming to have the L&N Railroad line correct the situation.

Ernest Reeves, Jr., railroad division official with the Public Service Commission, made the comments following an inspection of track sections in Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore with members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors after complaints from local citizens put pressure on the county supervisors to take action against the L&N Line.

The citizen complaints, which were brought before the board last week, came following the second train derailment in the Lakeshore-Ansley area in two months.

The Jan. 13 derailment of 17 cars of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad near the community of Ansley, forced the evacuation of approximately 15 families south of the derailment when a tank car containing a toxic chemical (isobutyronitrile) ruptured.

Reeves and the board members found several places at all four locations where the track was badly in need of repair. A common problem was loose spikes or plates with no spikes at all remaining to hold them in place. The inspectors also found rotted ties and several places where the foundation of the track gave under only slight weight. "You can come along here and pick these spikes up in your hands," said Jerry Ladner, Beat One Supervisor. "The cross ties are just floating on this foundation."

Inspector Reeves noted that the foundation of the tracks needed more ballast to shore up the loose ties and better drainage along the crossings.

"I will have the railroad division engineer come up and examine the entire line with me," he said. "After they see the condition of the track, I do not think we will have any problem getting it fixed."

An attorney for the L & N Railroad had been expected at the inspection tour, but failed to appear because of a wildcat strike in some areas of the state. Another meeting has been called for 2 p.m. Monday between railroad officials and the board.

The members of the county board and county residents pressed Reeves for a solution to the immediate problem of this whole area.

The board wants to require the trains preventing more derailments of trains along the damaged track. Of particular concern are the trains carrying poisonous or explosive chemicals such as the one which derailed three weeks ago.

"The railroad has a way of keeping its dangerous cargos secret from the public," said Supervisor Ladner. "And they come along here at 80 mph at night and 50 mph in the day with eight or ten of those tank cars in a row. Next time one of these trains derails, it could cause an explosion that could wipe out to keep speed down to 30 mph until the track is repaired. A resolution was passed to this effect at the last board meeting but there was some question, brought up by board attorney Sam Favre, that the county had no power to make such a ruling. Reeves said that although he had never had to deal with this question before, he felt that the county did have the authority to govern speed. He added that the Public Service Commission would probably step in in this case if the railroad refused to abide by county speed regulations.

House subcommittee to study removal of sales tax on fuel

John Binegar, president of the Gulf Coast Dealer's Association and owner of Binegar's 603 Exxon Station in Waveland, said Wednesday he was "very pleased" with action taken by the Mississippi Economic Council this week urging state lawmakers to remove state sales tax on motor fuels. Morton businessman John Lee, who chairs the Council's Highway's Committee, told the House Constitution Committee Monday that it should approve a resolution that would remove sales tax from motor fuels. The committee has agreed to form a subcommittee to hold further hearings on the matter.

Binegar and the dealer's association, along with representatives of the Mississippi Petroleum Industry, were involved recently in the petitioning of state legislators. Participating dealers were urging motorists to sign petitions against the sales tax while at the pumps getting their cars refueled.

Lee said Mississippi's already high gasoline prices are driven even higher by a "double taxation."

He explained that under Mississippi law, there are two taxes - excise and sales - on petroleum products, including gasoline and diesel. On the average priced gallon of gasoline purchased, he said, Mississippians pay nine cents excise tax and two and one-half cents sales tax. The sales tax is computed on the cost of the product plus the excise tax, which is a tax on tax.

"When the federal excise tax of four cents is added to the state excise and sales taxes, Mississippians are charged a total of 15.5 cents tax per gallon of gasoline. By comparison, Alabama has a total tax per gallon of 11.0 cents; Arkansas, 12.5; Louisiana, 12.0; Tennessee, 12.0," Lee said.

Mississippi is one of only seven states that levies a sales tax on motor fuel and is the only state that levies a sales tax on the excise tax, Lee added.

"We realize that some monies generated by the sales tax are used for county roads and city streets," Lee said. "Revenue needed for these purposes should be raised by the excise tax on motor fuel and property taxes."

Lee pointed out that no other essential product carries the burden of double taxation.

"With the prospect of an increase of five to 15 cents per gallon for gasoline as a result of the tariff proposed on foreign crude oil coupled with Mississippi's tax on tax, many people in the state cannot afford gasoline," Lee said.

Binegar said he believes all legislators on the Coast favor the removal of the sales tax, but, he added, the major question asked was "Where is the state going to get back the revenue?"

"That doesn't mean the fuel industry should be penalized," said Binegar.

Harbor house

A foster home for teenage girls will open in Bay St. Louis in February in the former Gex home, 125 Court St. The home will be occupied by ten to twelve girls between the ages of 13 and 18 from all areas of the state.

Girls' home planned

A foster home for teenage girls is scheduled to open in Bay St. Louis next month. Harbor House, which will accommodate a maximum of 12 girls, is being sponsored by the State Welfare office in Jackson.

Hancock County Welfare Director, Mrs. Lucrécia Fly, has been urging the establishment of a home for teenage girls in the area for over two years. She said that the home is needed because of the difficulty of finding foster homes for neglected teenagers.

"I had dreamed about the home for a long time," Mrs. Fly said. "When I went to Jackson to ask about the feasibility of the project, I found that they had also done some research into the problem and they decided to try the home in Bay St. Louis."

The home is the first of its type in the area and will accept girls from all over the state between the ages of 13 and 18. The girls will come to Harbor House because of home situations that necessitate removal of the children from the household. While at Harbor House, the girls will attend local schools and live as normally as possible, the Welfare Director said.

"The idea came about because in a bad home situation when the children are sent to foster homes, we found it more difficult to find homes for the teenagers," said Mrs. Fly. "We found many foster parents who wanted the younger children but very few who felt they could handle the problems of teenagers."

Harbor House will lease the old Gex home, 125 Court St., in Bay St. Louis. The girls will live there with a couple who will be hired as houseparents. There will also be relief houseparents and a counselor, Mrs. Annie Fields.

Mrs. Fields, a native of Bay St. Louis, holds a masters degree in social work from Tulane University in New Orleans. She will handle all of the counseling and case work for the girls and their parents.

"We expect a constant turnover of girls in the house," said Mrs. Fly. "Hopefully, after a few months the girl's home situation will improve enough so that she will be able to return to her parents."

The State Welfare office will only approve girls for admission who have been neglected, not delinquent teenagers.

"These girls are not juvenile delinquents," said Mrs. Fly, "but they would be if they couldn't receive help." There is no point in waiting until they get into some kind of trouble to help them. We might as well work on the problem right now.

The Welfare Director added that if Harbor House proves to be the success she hopes for, that it will probably stimulate the establishment of other such homes in other areas of the state.

Board rehires Breland over superintendent's objection

Superintendent of education for Hancock County, K. G. McCarty opened the Hancock County School Board meeting Tuesday with an argument over the board's minutes.

McCarty refused to sign the minutes of the previous meeting of Jan. 24 because he did not approve of the board's action to rehire former assistant superintendent of education, E. E. Breland, on a full time basis.

McCarty questioned the number of working days recorded for Breland, who had been working as a part time assistant in the Board of Education office since officially retiring late last year. "We agreed at the time the motions were made that we would write it up like it was,"

and Mr. Breland would work the number of days he needed to work," said Monvel Cuevas, Board Chairman. "This board has determined that it needs Mr. Breland to work for us, and according to the Mississippi Code, the board sets up the number of jobs and the salary and the Superintendent recommends the people for the positions."

The board voted unanimously at its Jan. 24 meeting to rehire Breland full time with a salary of $50 per day. In overruling McCarty's objection Tuesday, Cuevas said he was acting on the authority of the board and intended to carry that authority out.

Other board members were critical of McCarty's attitude toward rehiring Breland, hinting that it suggested mostly jealousy.

The board cut other scheduled business short in order to keep an appointment with Beat One Supervisor, Jerry Ladner, to inspect work completed at Gulfview School and Charles B. Murphy School.

The matter was deferred to an executive session held on Wednesday.

VA benefits increased

Congress has enacted a 22.7 per cent increase in educational benefits for Vietnam era veterans. The rate increase was made retroactive to September 1, 1974.

LTC Chetwin M. Hurd, Commander of the Jackson District (Army) Recruiting Command, revealed that the increase is for veterans pursuing institutional, cooperative or farm cooperative courses on a half-time or more basis. Included are wives, widows and children pursuing institutional courses.

The act also provides nine months of additional entitlement for certain veterans to use in pursuing a standard undergraduate degree.

The new law increases benefits by 18.2 per cent for veterans who are receiving vocational rehabilitation training, institutional on less than half-time basis, flight, PREP or correspondence courses, or receiving apprentice or on-the-job training. The 18.2 per cent increase also applies to active duty personnel pursuing an education program and to wives, widows and children pursuing cooperative courses, or receiving apprentice or on-the-job training. The smaller increase applies to wives and widows pursuing correspondence courses and for eligible persons pursuing full-time restorative courses.

The Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974 also authorizes loans up to $600 per academic year to veterans and eligible wives, widows and children pursuing courses on a half-time or more basis at colleges and certain below college level institutions. The loan provision becomes effective on January 1.

The tutorial assistance program for veterans and active duty members has been liberalized, increasing the monthly rate to $60 and the number of months available to 12.

The act also allows up to six months of refresher training benefits for persons to update their knowledge of advances in their occupational field which occurred while the veteran was on active duty.

Specific implementing details are now being worked out by VA officials. Beneficiaries will probably receive one check with the retroactive pay covering the September through December period. The January check should include the new increase.

LTC Hurd recommends that you contact your local VA office or representative for full details.

Researchers testing effects of aspirin on heart disease

Aspirin has been America's number one pain reliever for generations. Now it may have a place in treating heart disease.

Scientists at the University of Mississippi Medical Center and other heart researchers throughout the country are testing the possibility.

The Medical Center is one of 30 institutions across the nation participating in a five-year National Heart and Lung Institute (NHLI) study to see if aspirin helps prevent recurring heart attacks. The UMC phase of the program is supported by a $340,000 NHLI contract.

"Earlier research shows aspirin has a profound impact on the clotting action of blood platelets," a UMC spokesman said. Platelets are minuscule disks which heart scientists believe may play an important role in the initial development of heart attacks.

"This research will also show if prolonged daily use of aspirin produces any ill effects," the spokesman said.

The UMC scientists hope to enroll 130 Mississippians who've had heart attacks in the special study. Half will get one tablet three times a day, the equivalent of three ordinary aspirin tablets. The other half will take placebo - harmless, inactive pills.

To rule out any psychological effect, neither group will know which is which. Their personal physicians will okay the treatment.

"We want to stress that patients who enroll in the study must have the permission of their own physicians and will remain under their doctor's care," the spokesman said.

If aspirin does prove effective in the prevention of heart attacks with its benefits outweighing any harmful effects, scientists say it will be a major breakthrough in heart research.

Pass school board delays contract

The Pass Christian School Board voted Tuesday to delay a final vote on awarding a contract for insurance coverage for the school district. The vote to delay was the result of some unanswered questions which arose when representatives of insurance companies made presentations to the board.

Hartwell Gex approached the board with an insurance proposal that would cost considerably less for fire and extended coverage. Nelson Lang of Lang Insurance Company spoke on behalf of the current policy holders. The Lang Insurance Company is the agent of record for the school district. Lang stated that it is possible for Gex to offer a reduced rate due to the fact that he is increasing the deductible from $100 to $1000. He indicated, to the board, that considerations should be given to the firm that has given satisfactory service in the past.

Bernard Giadrosich also spoke on behalf of the current policy holders. He stated that the board should concern themselves with the coverage as well as the cost of the insurance. According to Giadrosich, raising the deductible from $100 to $1000 could ultimately prove to be an unsatisfactory and costly arrangement for the board. However, if the board was interested in insurance with the higher deductible he felt that the agent of record should be given an equal opportunity to submit a proposal incorporating the increase in deductible.

Mrs. Sheila Russell, Drug Education specialist, submitted a report on the status of the drug education program in the Pass Christian Schools. Mrs. Russell explained that the program as envisioned by the Legislature was a three-year endeavor.

Most of last year, the first full year of the program, was spent in program planning and identification. This year the program is planned to meet the identified needs. More time is spent in the classroom and in group counseling. She stated that every effort is being made to meet the needs of the students in the elementary grades.

Superintendent Le Roy Lizana reported that the separator has been installed on the well at the DeLisle Elementary School. He stated that all reports indicate that the problems with the water supply at the DeLisle facility have been solved.

The board voted to accept the bid quote of $359.95 from Music Mine for a tape recorder for the Pass Christian High School Band. Other bids received were: Mississippi Music $329.00; Huffman T.V. $389.95; Newsome Music Company $425.00.

In other action the Board voted to:

—Advertise for Title VI supplies and equipment, athletic equipment and supplies, and sale of surplus tables.

—Accept the bid of $241.50 for thirty (30) dictionaries from Mississippi School Supply Company. Central School Supply Company also bid $241.50.

The board voted to accept the resignations of Mrs. Patricia Wilcox and John Altier as teachers in the Pass Christian Middle School. The Board elected Miss Kathleen Reed Carrol as a Physical Education teacher for the Pass Middle School.

The board voted to reject all bids for a storage shed at the Pass Christian High School.

Finally, the attendance report for the fourth school month showed a slight increase in students from the third month. The district enrollment is now 1559. Concern was expressed at the low A.D.A. for the month (1392). It was noted that much of the absenteeism can be attributed to the rash of sickness experienced throughout the district. However, there is a concern throughout the district that much of the absenteeism is attributed to unexcused absenteeism.

Precision modeling

Ingalls' model-maker, Dewey Murren checks the operation of the monorail train of the LHA amphibious assault ship now in production at Ingalls shipyard.

Ingalls completes ship design

Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries has just completed the design for the Navy's new LHA General Purpose Amphibious Assault Ship and will be coordinating the special training courses for the Navy crew. The ship will carry the entire battalion landing team plus all equipment and supplies, and it is designed to unload troops and supplies simultaneously.

The 820 foot ships contain a system of five cargo elevators designed to transfer cargo to a conveyor and then on to the waiting boats.

Models of the 39,000 ton vessels will be sent to the LHA training school in Coronado, California. Although the operating portion of the model is built to scale, the electronic control panels are full-size and exact replicas of the controls aboard ship. Crews in training will actually operate the model at these control panels.

Recovery for economy predicted in last of 1975

MISSISSIPPI STATE — The economy is expected to sag in the first half of 1975 with the probable recovery "of some dimension during the last half of the year," reported Robert Martin, economist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Consumer spending in real terms is expected to expand by five per cent in the latter part of 1975.

The general rate of inflation may be 12-13 per cent and unemployment may rise to eight per cent. "Most economists agree that full employment without inflation is impossible unless some measures of control are instituted. This does not mean that controls are favored, but that meaasures that increase employment are often inflationary and measures to reduce inflation often create unemployment problems," Martin explained. "Additional inflationary problems could arise to cancel some growth and improvement predictions. Reduction in general confidence of the people, oil embargoes or sharp oil price increases, trade wars, sharp changes in government policy or bad crop years would cause very serious economic problems," he added.

Consumers can expect ample food supplies during the coming year but consumption will probably be less than the record per capita levels of 1974. Even at 15 per cent higher prices in 1974, food consumption per person was at an all-time high.

Forecasting food supplies and prices for 1975 will be difficult because of the uncertainties that exist in the economy and in agriculture production, Martin noted. Several developments will play an important role in food costs. Declines in world grain crops, reduced grain stock levels, continued advance in energy costs, packaging costs, and wage costs, rising transportation rates, world-wide economic activity, and weather conditions will greatly influence food prices in the coming year.

"The total expected market development indicates that for the first half of 1975 retail grocery store prices could advance at rates approaching three to four per cent per quarter," Martin said. "Prices for food eaten away from home are not likely to rise as rapidly as consumers with eroded real incomes attempt to save on food costs."

Pass to hire officer, laborers

Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier said Tuesday night that the city will hire an additional policeman and two laborers with the $12,500 the city received in a Title IV federal grant for public service employment.

The city was planning to hire an extra utilities department worker and an assistant harbor master with the federal grant money. However, since both the utilities department and the harbor are revenue-producing bodies, Mayor Saucier decided to hire employees to fill other positions.

"Our general fund," said Saucier, "cannot stand another two or three more employees. It's the area that is stretched the most."

City officials, policemen, firemen, and laborers are paid out of the city's general fund. To be eligible for the federal monies made available under the Title IV grant, a candidate must be the head of the household and must be unemployed or underemployed for at least 30 days.

Moody says he expects to visit all sections of the District between now and the election and that he looks forward with keen anticipation to meeting the citizens and discussing Highway problems with them.

Man taken on drug charge

The Hancock County Sheriff's Office arrested Gerald P. Mauffray, 27, of Kiln Saturday night in Bay St. Louis on a charge of possession of marijuana with intent to sell. Mauffray was stopped by narcotic agents Ronnie Peterson and Paul Bernard on Highway 90 West at 6:15 p.m. on information from an informer.

Mauffray was first stopped for reckless driving and driving without a license. He was also charged with assault and battery on a police officer and resisting arrest. The Bay St. Louis police and the Mississippi Highway Patrol assisted in the arrest.

Mauffray has been confined in the county jail with no bond set because he had violated his parole on a previous case.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

We can't remember any President in this century who has been faced with as many complex and vital problems as Mr. Ford in his first six months in office. Nor any President more like the frog in the well which jumped up one foot and fell back two.

The picture which seems to be in the minds of most people in the country today of Congress and the President is of a confused and bewildered rooster trying to ride herd on a bunch of confused and bewildered hens. Each chicken wants to take a different path, and the course adopted by the rooster satisfies nobody.

Mr. Ford seems to be trying his best to bring order and progress out of the bad condition the country finds itself in. But is his best good enough? In a recent TV press interview the question was asked if his capability as a Grand Rapids congressman is sufficient to meet the problems of a President in this critical period. He said he was confident that it is. It seems to us that one element that is lacking is forcefulness, the ability to make the "hard sell," the FDR touch.

For instance, six months ago Mr. Ford could have killed or at least badly crippled the inflation by limiting profits. By putting a ban on current profits above a fixed percentage above the previous year's take, there would be no opportunity for gouging the public; bread, milk, potatoes would sell for only a slight increase in price; huge percentages of profits, as reported by many concerns would be eliminated and prices of commodities would therefore drop. Some adjustments, of course, would have to be made, but exorbitant profits with consequent mammoth prices, would be eliminated.

It is unfortunate that in a governmental system as good as ours, the personal factor should sometimes dominate, as in our present crisis. Each new President brings with him totally new ideas and concepts, some of which may be entirely different from those of his predecessor, and under our Constitution he has great power to put his own ideas into effect. Mr. Ford stepped into an especially difficult situation, and we believe he is doing his best to meet it wisely. But what is wise for the people of Grand Rapids may not be the wise thing for all of the people of the United States. We'd rather start by clipping the claws of the oil and other predator companies.

Guest Editorial

Let's open our eyes

Dear Editor:

Again this week in Bay St. Louis the vandals and litter and beer can throwers held sway. Reports are at least one private home was fired into.

The populace is beginning to show some healthy signs of concern. "How Long? -- they ask each other -- "How long has this been going on?" This littering of streets and senseless, stupid and ruthless destruction of property? The answer to that question is too long, far too long!

What is to be done about it? Only you can answer that question. These offenses will continue until an indignant and outraged populace bands together and demands that their rights be protected.

There are laws for your protection, and adequate punishments provided for offenders. You are paying for it. A part of your tax dollar is earmarked for your protection.

To your knowledge have there been any arrests made lately? Have those who caused disturbances, strewn our streets with trash and waste, defaced property and endangered life been brought into the courts? Have you taken any action? Have you given police the license number of any one you saw throwing trash? Have you reported any incidents that aroused your suspicion?

Maybe you are afraid of getting "involved". You might have to take time off from work... break an engagement... miss your favorite T.V. show to appear in court as a witness. Worse still, some of those warped, twisted-minds might turn on you with their stolen weapons and home-made ammunition and damage your property or your safety.

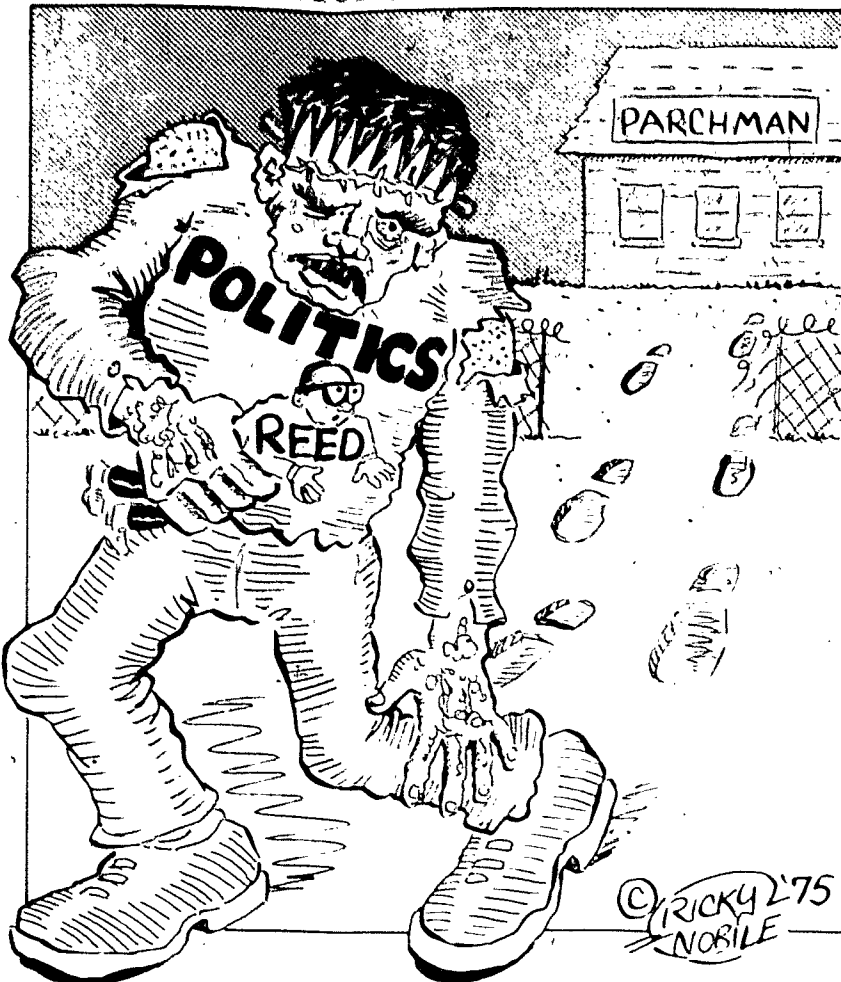

Do you have the courage to help clean up this town? Your town? If not, do you really deserve to live in a peaceful, clean and law-abiding place?

It is up to you. What do you plan to do about it?

THE MONSTER RETURNS

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

SOME POSITIVE ALTERNATIVES

I have never liked the idea of attacking a proposal without offering some constructive alternatives.

After all, it's one thing to criticize. It is quite another to introduce a different -- and better -- approach.

Having said that, the President recently delivered a set of economic and energy proposals to the Congress. I have taken a long and careful look at everything he proposed and I respectfully beg to differ with him on certain points.

The President thinks a tax on oil imports is the way to conserve our nation's energy supplies. As I have stated in at least two lengthy newspaper columns, I am firmly opposed to a gasoline tax, which would be one of the end results of an oil import tax.

What I do think we should consider is an orderly allocation plan, where the actual supply of gasoline is reduced. That way, we are hitting the problem at the source of supply -- not at the price.

If there is no way to make an allocation system work, I think we should look next at a program of rationing, where individuals can purchase just so much gasoline over a given period of time. That way, everyone gets a crack at getting their fair share of gasoline.

I just don't think a play of higher prices is the answer. It would be detrimental to the average working man.

The President also mentioned a proposed tax cut for individuals. Like the gasoline tax, I have serious reservations about a tax cut.

Now, I'll be the first to admit that a tax cut sounds good. The only thing it will generate, however, is more deficit -- and we certainly don't need that right now.

I think we're overloading in favor of an increased cash flow to fight recession -- all to the total disadvantage of inflation. We've got a big enough deficit as it is. An $80 billion deficit could have a devastating impact on this country.

As for specific alternatives, I would suggest: (1) a reduction in expenditures, down to the level of projected income; (2) the enactment of capital formation inducing laws at the earliest opportunity; and (3) the removal of anticompetitive regulatory practices of the federal government.

Those are my reactions to some of the proposed energy and economic proposals. I may, in the final analysis, have to vote for some parts of the various proposals which I do not agree with in order to attempt to defeat an even worse program.

Our Readers Write

To the Editor:

In the local papers, and during a meeting last week, Mayor Steve Saucier of Pass Christian made extensive comments about the proposed DuPont plant. I couldn't agree with him more when he said, "Bad information is being presented." To recognize the opportunity that we have in DuPont, it is necessary to have accurate information.

In his effort to educate the public, Mr. Saucier himself, has spread bad information. Many of the "facts" he presented to the public were only partially true. I'd like to complete some of these facts.

HALF FACTS: DuPont will dump 2 to 4 million gallons of water into the Bay; the pollutant in this water will be salt.

THE OTHER HALF: This water will be salted with sodium sulfate - 36,000 pounds of it a day. Technically, sodium sulfate is a salt, but not the same salt that we use at the dinner table or that is found in the Coast's waters. Sodium sulfate reacts with bacteria in the water, eventually producing hydrogen sulfide, a gas that smells like rotten eggs; the effect of this gas on marine life in the Bay is unknown.

HALF FACT: The Air and Water Pollution Control Commission has established safe limits on pollutants, and anyway, DuPont will not put anything in the Bay that isn't there now.

THE OTHER HALF: Setting limits on pollutants is one thing, whether these limits get observed is something else. Courts have tried numerous cases where companies have been caught exceeding their permit limitations. Pollution control really comes from having a watchdog. If the recent record of our governmental agencies dealing with DuPont indicates how well they will enforce controls, the Bay of St. Louis is in trouble.

It is true that DuPont won't put anything new into the Bay. That's because almost every natural element known to man is in that water. The Bay contains mercury, chromium, lead, and magnesium; it contains gold and silver too; it even has uranium in it, as well as deuterium and tritium, substances that can be used for thermonuclear explosions! But all of this doesn't amount to a hill of beans because of the low concentrations of these chemicals. The DuPont plant will produce wastes in higher concentrations than in the Bay presently. The most poisonous chemicals will go into a deep well. Experts disagree about the safety of this method. For every geologist DuPont can hire to say it is safe, someone else who has the money can hire another geologist to say that it isn't. Even if there were complete safety in this method, there is the very real danger of accidents, both from human carelessness and natural disasters.

HALF FACT: DuPont's wastes will have a temperature of 95 degrees; good sense says to operate at less than that; there will be a mixing zone beyond which the effects of DuPont's discharge will not be noticed.

THE OTHER HALF: This so called thermal pollution probably presents little danger, but there are a few things about it that people should know.

What we consider good sense means nothing to a large industry unless it is also good economics. Good economics tells DuPont to discharge waste at 95 degrees, or above it if they can get away with it.

It is fine to designate a mixing zone, but in a bay which doesn't flow very much or very fast, water sometimes just doesn't mix. Aerial photographs of the Bay will often show this.

TOTAL FALSEHOOD: It isn't practical for DuPont to locate in an industrial park, and it would be of no advantage to us.

THE CASE FOR AN INDUSTRIAL PARK: When you consider both the public and the long term private interests, I don't think that a reason exists for DuPont not locating in an industrial park. Its desire for 2200 acres of land is not a bona fide need. Instead, it stems from an irrational and wasteful policy of DuPont designed to maintain the company's image rather than to benefit the community where it locates. Even if DuPont insists on the need for that acreage, that much land, and more, is available in and adjacent to industrial parks of the area; this land already has rail and dredged water access. If necessary, we should even give DuPont the land in an industrial park. The long term gains would be worth it.

There are many advantages to the public of locating DuPont in an industrial park. Local officials have consistently failed to realize these advantages because they have consistently failed to accept and carry out any good planning done for this area.

An industrial park is one step toward having planned and controlled economic growth, growth that nets the public maximum benefit from every industry attracted to this area.

It is difficult to illustrate the advantages of planned growth because there's so little of it in this area. You can realize these advantages more clearly by seeing the disadvantages of our unplanned growth.

People who would work in a plant located like DuPont's would end up spending about $500 more per year than if the plant were located in a planned way, because of unnecessary transportation costs. (This is based on 1973 prices!)

A number of studies have been done for this area by urban and regional planners; without exception, they say that industry should not locate where DuPont proposes. These studies are not based on some untested theory but on nearly a century's experience of industrial growth in this nation. What this type of planning boils down to is learning not to make the same mistakes twice. Good planners have learned this but many officials in this state have not, and so they haven't given the proposals in these studies the force of law.

By promising jobs, port facilities, and development opportunities without admitting to the problems of its proposed location, DuPont is effectively bribing the Coast to agree with its proposals without question. It is as though DuPont were holding a piece of bait in front of the people of the area, concealing the fact that there is also a hook in it. I hope our officials are smart enough to get the bait without making the public swallow the hook too.

Our officials should insist on getting DuPont to locate here; just as strongly, they should insist on putting the plant in an industrial park and on insuring pollution control. That way, we can have all of the economic goodies

DuPont promises without having the disadvantages and the economic inefficiency that the public, not DuPont, would have to pay for. Many local people, well qualified people who are not in this thing for a profit, have been saying this for a long time. It's too bad DuPont's money shouts so loudly that people can't hear common sense talking.

Sincerely,
Vic Frankiewicz, Jr.

Dear Editor:

Recently, Steve Saucier, the mayor of Pass Christian, wrote a letter to put the DuPont question into logical perspective, based on facts which he had obtained through his superior information sources. This letter is in answer to that letter and also presents some other factors which I believe should be considered.

First, Mr. Saucier stated that the waste from the DuPont plant would have a sodium chloride content of about 150 parts per million compared to the bay's natural content of 250 parts per million. These facts are both wrong; the DuPont discharge will have a sodium chloride content of about 800 parts per million and the natural sodium chloride content of the bay is about 12,000 parts per million. My source on the DuPont discharge is the Air & Water Pollution Control Commission; the sodium chloride content of the bay is calculated by assuming that the salinity of the bay averages about 15 parts per thousand and noting that sodium chloride comprises about 80 percent of the salts in sea water. These errors in themselves would not probably be serious, but Mr. Saucier also completely left out the main component in the DuPont discharge, sodium sulfate, which is present only in very small quantities in normal sea water. The DuPont waste will have sodium sulfate at a concentration of 3400 parts per million; the five cubic feet per second discharge thus results in somewhat more than two million pounds per month of sodium sulfate being discharged into the bay. In addition, there are other salts in the DuPont waste which Mr. Saucier passes over, including sodium silicate, sodium bicarbonate, calcium sulfate, ferrous sulfate and magnesium sulfate. To my knowledge, the effects of the discharge of these materials has not been determined.

Mr. Saucier's comparison of the DuPont discharge to the Wolf and Jordan rivers of a flow rate alone is not relevant. The bay has had thousands of years to adjust to the materials being carried by these two rivers (except the Bay St. Louis sewage in the Jordan river which is an example of the effect of man's pollution) and I do not believe the compounds in the DuPont discharge are the same as those in the rivers, so comparison is impossible.

Mr. Saucier next suggested that the plant should not be located in an industrial park because the deep well injection and the discharge into the bay would still be present. I see no logic in this statement. Why put an ugly plant in a valuable wetlands area when it can be placed in a location expressly designed for such facilities. The wetlands area has been recommended as a recreation area which makes sense. The productivity of the wetlands for supporting marine life is well documented.

After reading up on the DuPont issue, I began to consider a few thoughts that came to mind. These I would like to share with the people of Hancock and Harrison counties.

The Bay of St. Louis is a tremendous asset to this area. Its relatively unpolluted state provides an excellent location for nearly all water sports. The Bay is also a boost to the tourism industry - a category which includes a substantial number of businesses. How many of us know of people who have bought property or homes over here to enjoy during the summer months? These same people also pay taxes and spend money over here. I have strong feelings that the construction of a chemical plant on the Bay of St. Louis will have a negative effect on all persons who make a living in this way.

Perhaps more important than the tourism business is the fishing industry. The thought of using the Bay for a chemical dumping grounds is sickening; the eventual results are frightening. But the outlook is hopeless. We are soon to witness yet another rape of the land by way of our own cheap labor. If all goes well for DuPont, the plant will be completed in 1977 -- just about the time we'll start seeing some good oystering. So people beware, only time will reveal the possible mistake we may allow. A grave blunder with practically irreversible consequences. Doesn't anyone care for something worth much more than money?

Respectfully yours,
Richard Kevin Lagarde,

Alcan moves in

Work has begun on the conversion of the Eljer Plant on Railroad Ave. to the new Alcan Plant. The new company should be in operation by the summer of 1976.

Employers reminded of OSHA requirement

Employers with eight or more employees are reminded by the U. S. Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) that they must complete their annual 1974 summary of job deaths, injuries and illnesses in their establishments by January 31, 1975.

Donald E. MacKenzie, the Labor Department's assistant regional director for OSHA, Atlanta, says that all covered employers with eight or more employees must complete Form 102 — "Annual Summary of Occupational Injuries and Illnesses."

He added that the form must then be posted in workplaces where employees can see it no later than February 1 and left posted until March 1.

Form 102 has been sent to employers, but additional supplies can be obtained at the OSHA area office at: 5760 I-55 North, Frontage Road East, Jackson, Miss. 39211, telephone: 601-929-4000.

Silver beavers

Silver beaver recipients, Buck Buehler and John Rutherford, display their trophies at the 53rd Annual Boy Scouts Award banquet in New Orleans.

Bay Scout leaders receive silver beavers

Two Bay St. Louis Scout leaders received the Silver Beaver Award for distinguished service at the New Orleans Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America Thursday, Jan. 23 in New Orleans. Warren "Buck" Buehler and John D. Rutherford accepted the award at the 53rd Annual Recognition Banquet.

Buehler has been active in scouting for 29 years, including service as a division chairman and as a member of the Scout Development Fund Campaign. In Bay St. Louis, Buehler is a Post Commander of the American Legion, a member of the Wildlife and Fisheries Commission and a member of the Bay High School P.T.A.

Rutherford has served scouting for over 25 years as a troop committeeman, scoutmaster and District committeeman. He is also an American Legion member and has served six years on the Board of Directors of the Youth Center and the Committee for Drug Abuse.

Sixty members from the Boy Scouts Cypress District in Hancock County attended the banquet. Michael Haas, District Chairman New Orleans Area Council, was the recipient of the first place trophy for the Cypress District for the largest attendance.

Apples should be firm and free from bruises. However, slightly bruised apples can be an economical buy if they are to be used right away and are reduced in price. They are a poor risk though for home canning or freezing. Bruised apples should be used, instead, for jelly, apple butter or cider.

Apples store best in a cool, damp place. In the refrigerator, keep them in a closed container or drawer away from other foods to prevent them from giving off their flavor or from taking on the flavors of other foods. This also prevents loss of moisture and crispness.

If you purchase a large quantity of apples, remember to sort them occasionally. The old saying is really true, "one rotten apple can spoil the barrel."

By Norine Barnes, Hancock County Home Economist

Julia Child stated recently that her most common cooking error was in choosing the wrong kind of apples to prepare. If she needs help in choosing apples I think we must all need more information.

Many varieties are good for all purposes - eating out of hand, general cooking or baking whole. Tart, firm apples that cook quickly are usually preferred for pies, sauces and desserts. For baking, apples that retain their shape when cooked are the best choice.

Sweeter apples are usually eaten raw. Two varieties, Cortland and Golden Delicious, generally do not turn dark after slicing which makes them especially good choices for eating raw or in salads.

Small apples are good choices for school lunch boxes or after school snacks. Those medium sized apples for general use with larger ones for baking.

Flavor is at its best when apples are at the peak of maturity. Remember, size is not an indicator of maturity but background color may be. Generally, background color should be greenish-yellow to yellow. When the background color of a red variety is green, it is not fully mature. The same is true of the yellow varieties. The amount of red color may indicate maturity, but many of the new strains of red apples turn red before they are mature enough for eating.

To get the most for the money spent on apples, check their condition carefully.

Waste control method developed by NSTL

By Anita Dinwiddie

The solution to the problem of sewerage disposal in Bay St. Louis may be found by the cultivation of aquatic weeds. Commissioner of Public Utilities in Bay St. Louis, Lucien Kidd, is presently cooperating on a project headed by biochemist B.C. Wolverton of the National Space Technology Laboratories involving the use of water hyacinth as a method of water purification.

Water hyacinth, a floating aquatic weed, will remove the nutrients in polluted waters by feeding on the nitrates and phosphates in the water. Botanists have known this fact about water hyacinth for years, but because the plants multiply so rapidly, they have generally been considered a nuisance.

"This is a natural system that will clean up the waste," said Wolverton. "One acre of water hyacinth will remove the waste of 325 people. Scientists know this, but we also know that a system like this must be controlled. That is the problem we are experimenting on now."

Commissioner Kidd became interested in the experiment recently when he received an order from the Environmental Protection Agency that he must institute secondary sewerage treatment by 1977 and tertiary by 1985. He decided to offer his lagoon, now used as a primary treatment plant, to NSTL for experimentation. A water hyacinth system, if successful, will provide the tertiary treatment, meaning removal of all nutrients, required by EPA.

"The only other choice is to tie Bay St. Louis into the new Waveland plant," said Kidd, "which is presently only a secondary system. This would mean an enormous cost to the people, and it is not that they don't want to pay it, it is a question of not being able to pay it."

The major problem of the water hyacinth project is finding an effective method of harvesting the plants in such a way as to control their growth. The current plan is to harvest half of the contents of the six acre section of the lagoon to be used for the experiment and allow the remaining plants to propagate the area again. NSTL is currently investigating the purchase of an aquatic weed harvester to remove sections of the weeds periodically. The projected starting date for planting the water hyacinth is this summer.

"The key to starting the project is harvesting," said Wolverton. "The plants grow at a maximum rate of 500 lbs. per acre per day, and we will have to decide how to harvest, how often and what type of machinery will be necessary."

An added attraction to the water hyacinth method is that the weed itself is valuable after it is harvested. The biochemists have shown in laboratory experiments that the water hyacinth can be made into fertilizer, animal fodder and methane gas. Part of the experimental package started by NSTL will be a plant to convert the weeds into methane gas.

"I know that all of this has a tendency of sounding like a panacea, being able to get rid of our waste and pollution and making gas at the same time," said Wolverton. "We know that it works in the laboratory. Now we just have to go out and see if it works on a large scale. I envision someday that there may even be industries coming down and buying our sewerage for the methane that it will produce."

The funds for the harvester and the methane plant will come primarily from the Office of Applications, a special fund for the development of community projects. It will begin as a small operation, but if the project is successful other communities may develop the system for one-tenth the cost because the greatest expense will be in developing the new equipment, Wolverton said.

Commissioner Kidd hopes to purchase the equipment from NSTL if the program proves a success. He estimated the system's cost to be approximately $100,000 as compared to the $1,000,000 cost of tying into the Waveland plant.

"The best part about the project is that we are using our own natural resources to regain other resources like gas and fertilizer," said Kidd. "Americans are the most wasteful people in the world. But with this we aren't wasting anything. We're getting something back."

Wolverton believes that if this project proves successful that a similar system could be set up in many parts of the country. The basic requirement for cultivation of water hyacinth is a high pH, or acidity, rating. The system must also be designed to retain the sewerage long enough to remove all impurities. Even a colder climate could use the system by constructing a green house over the lagoon and heating it with the methane gas produced by the plants themselves, he said.

As a result of his research in water hyacinth, Wolverton has received national recognition, although he asserts that he only put together the ideas that biochemists have worked on for years.

A Mississippi native, Wolverton began his work in aquatic plants at NSTL in 1971. In the past few weeks as his project moves from the laboratory to actual use, he has attracted the attention of many, including NBC's Today Show, the British Broadcasting Company, all of the New Orleans television stations and the Associated Press.

He is a graduate of Mississippi College and holds a masters degree in biochemistry from the University of Mississippi Medical Center and the University of West Florida. He joined NSTL after ten years with the Defense Department studying the ecological and environmental effects of chemical-biological warfare.

"It really is unfair that I should get all this publicity," he said, "because I just put together what many others have known for years. I think that it is the threat of shortages now that have made people suddenly interested in my weeds."

Civilians to observe Clergy Week

In observance of "International Clergy Week" which is set for Feb. 2-8, the Long Beach Civitan Club has invited Rev. William K. Hart to speak Monday night on the work being done at St. Michael's Farm for Boys.

Rev. Hart is the Prior of the St. Michael's School which was established in 1954 in Picaune for boys in trouble. The dates of Clergy Week were set to include the anniversary of the sinking of the U.S.S. Dorchester during World War II. When the Dorchester sank within 27 minutes of being torpedoed, four chaplains gave their life jackets to others and went down with the ship.

"Civilians all over the world remember the sacrifice of four men of God - a rabbi, a priest, and two ministers - who gave their lives so that others might live," said Chaplain Ken Ward of the Civilians. He added, "We want this to be a special thank you to all our servants of God right here in Long Beach."

The public is invited to the meeting in the auditorium of Hardy Hall on the Gulf Park campus at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Civilians should note the change in meeting place.

Building permits given for November

Although Bay St. Louis ranked fourth among the nine coastal cities in dollar value of building permits issued during the month of November, 1974, it ranked second in amount per capita based on the 1970 Federal census, according to the Bay St. Louis mayor's office.

The total dollar value of building permits issued by each city during the month of November, 1974, according to figures prepared by the Gulf Coast Branch Office of the Mississippi Research and Development Center in cooperation with city building officials, are as follows:

Pascagoula, $484,105; Gulfport, $202,426; Biloxi, $134,130; Bay St. Louis, $118,273; Long Beach, $74,900; Ocean Springs, $32,150; Waveland, $25,000; Moss Point, $17,000; Pass Christian, $9,800.

The per capita value of permits issued in each of the nine communities during the same month of November, 1974, based on the 1970 Federal census are as follows: Pascagoula, $17.76; Bay St. Louis, $17.52; Long Beach, $12.14; Waveland, $8.04; Ocean Springs, $3.36; Pass Christian, $3.29; Biloxi, $2.77; Gulfport, $2.73; Moss Point, $8.88.

Social Security News

People can get a report on the earnings credited to their social security record free of charge by calling or writing any social security office, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport. "You don't need to pay anyone to help you get a statement of your earnings," Wofford said. "Just ask any social security office for a 'Request for Statement of Earnings' post card. Fill in your name, address, date of birth, and social security number. Sign, stamp, and mail the card. Social security will send you a statement of earnings credited to your record free of charge."

Earnings credited to the worker's social security number build retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare protection for workers and their families. The amount of monthly social security payments is based on the worker's average earnings over a period of years.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Gulfport social security office is at 02015 Pass Road. The phone number is 1-896-1324.

Bay navy officer receives honor

Park named

The Pearl River Basin Development District has decided to name the recreation area on the Jordan River McLeod Memorial Park in honor of Albert J. McLeod, an early settler of the area, and his wife Virginia McLeod. The land was acquired for the park from NASA in December 1974.

Dedication Ceremonies for the park are now being planned by the Board of Directors of the Pearl River Basin Development District.

Petty Officer T. J. Williams of Bay St. Louis has been selected as the Navy's representative for Hawaii Jaycee's Young Military Man of the Year Award. Williams, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Williams, is assigned to the Air Operations Department at Barbers Point, Hawaii in the Operations Maintenance Division.

Williams spends much of his spare time as a coach for young boys in the community in basketball, baseball and football. He is also involved in the Drug Abuse Prevention and Personal Hygiene programs in Barbers Point. Williams was honored Saturday, Jan. 25, at the Military Recognition Night at the Hawaiian Regent Hotel.

To the Sea Coast Echo

President Nixon, commenting on SALT I and Ford, on SALT II expressed the same rationale, that it is "a good agreement", because in its absence the U.S. would have had to substantially increase its military expenditures in the strategic area. In so doing, they indicated awareness that the Soviets had a program that would give them strategic superiority. The rationale implied that our presidents, as a result of the meetings at Moscow and Vladivostok, had convinced the Soviets to alter their goals.

The terms of SALT I do not warrant the stated rationale, nor can the implication be supported. It was agreed the Soviets could complete the construction of all strategic weapon systems in their program. We did not require them to stop anything.

While great publicity was being given the Watergate coverup, no information was given the public about Soviet missile plans. They were beginning full-scale testing on four new kinds of Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles, SS-16, 17, 18, and 19, and a new class of nuclear submarine, the "Delta", was under construction. The rationale regarding SALT I was misleading. The public should have been informed, military expenditures substantially increased and SALT I rejected.

There are many weaknesses in SALT II. MIRV warheads cannot be verified by satellite. The Soviet "Backfire", operational this year with intercontinental capability, two-and-a-half times the size of our F-11, and four-fifths the size of our future B-1, is not to be counted in the number of strategic delivery systems. This could spell suicide for America! Neither are the Soviet medium bombers, TU-16s or the TU-22s, both of which could reach U.S. targets with airborne refueling. A new high supersonic delta-wing Soviet bomber in the 300,000 pound class is now undergoing flight test.

SALT II is anything but "a good agreement"! Again the public should be informed military expenditures even more substantially increased because of the SALT I error, and SALT II rejected. Dr. Malcolm Curie, Military R&D, states: "The Soviet technical advances, their willingness to spend freely, and the sheer massiveness of their new strategic missile programs are simply staggering. The concentration of R&D effort needed for development of four new missiles, new bus-type dispensing systems, new MIRV'd payloads, new guidance, new type silo, new Launch techniques, and new warheads, far exceeds anything seen previously in the history of missilery."

There have been numerous scholarly studies published during the past two and a half years, quoting Soviet officials defining "detente" as something other than a relaxation of tensions. They call it a tactic to advance the class struggle against capitalist-imperialists. A study by the University of Miami's Center for Advanced International Studies reveals Soviet anti-American policies relating to the October 1973 Middle East War. Public officials must be aware of them.

The American Republic is being purposefully placed in a position of extreme danger in a planned world conquest by the Soviets. Kissinger as Secretary of State, sworn to protect and defend the Constitution of the U.S., cannot disclaim knowledge and complicity.

SOYBEANS 1975

It looks like we are going to plant a lot more soybeans this year than last year. The acreage increase could be more than half a million acres. With this in mind, it would be a good idea for you to start making plans for getting your needed supplies and equipment.

Keep in mind your soil type when selecting a variety to plant. Best adapted varieties for slowly drained clay soils include Lee 74, Tracy, Lee 68, Pickett 71 and Semmes. These are superior to others on heavy land in wet years. If you want earlier varieties, Hill or Mack will be satisfactory except in the wettest years. Bragg is the best adapted late variety for such soils.

On medium to light soils that are well drained, the best adapted varieties are Hill, Forrest, Tracy, Davis, Lee 68, Lee 74 and Pickett 71. In central and northern parts of the state, Bragg is among the top varieties.

In the most southern one-third of the state Bragg, Ransom, McNair 800, Coker 338, Coker 266A, Hutton and Cobb fit best.

CONTROL WOODY VEGETATION

Looking for something constructive to do now? You might consider your ditch banks, fence rows and farm buildings. In many cases these areas are grown up in woody vegetation. You should probably cut the brush first, especially if the woody plants are more than three inches in diameter.

A mixture of one part 2,4,5-T plus 24 parts of diesel fuel can be applied to freshly cut stumps, the base of small woody plants or in the frill of overlapped cuts on larger trees. Such treatments will prevent sprouting and leafing out of the woody plants in the spring. Drift is not usually a problem with this approach.

CUT FEED COST

It is too late to do anything about growing good, high quality dairy feed for this winter, but you can make some plans now to prevent having a shortage of feed next winter.

Put the pencil to it and you will find that a pound of nutrient from grain sorghum silage costs two to three cents, four to six cents from winter or summer temporary grazing and about five cents from quality hay. That same pound of nutrient from grain or concentrate costs about a dime.

You can see that milk-making nutrients from forages cost far less than those from grain.

TREE PLANTING

Planted your trees yet? This is Mississippi Tree Planting Week, so take advantage of this opportunity to plant trees. One tip: Make sure that you do not let the roots of the seedling dry out. This greatly reduces the chances of survival.

THESE DAYS, MEETINGS PAY MORE THAN MONEY.

The Army Reserve offers you job security, skill training, and retirement benefits. Plus a good extra income.

Mystic Carnival holds annual ball

Mrs. Boyd Whittington was selected as the Queen of the Mystic Carnival sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club last Saturday, Jan. 25.

The Queen and her six maids were selected by a draw of seven names from the Queen's box which contained the names of all members of the auxiliary. The Queen was then chosen by selecting the slice of King Cake containing the silver bean.

The six maids selected were Mrs. John Cook, Mrs. Charles Staehle, Mrs. Harmon Turan, Mrs. J. F. LaRoux Jr., Mrs.

Rene deMontluzin, and Mrs. William Hilliker.

The King of the Mystic Carnival, Mr. William P. Hilliker, led the royal procession around the floor and in the court dance.

Cutting the fat from your food bill with milk

Milk is a big part of almost everybody's food budget. Not only do children need a lot of it for growth, grown-ups need it too for body maintenance. It's our main source of calcium and rich in protein and riboflavin.

But the more you know about butterfat, the more "fat" you might be able to trim from your food bill each week. Because we offer you a wide selection of butterfat contents in the milk we sell - all at different prices.

The average milk-drinking family can actually save up to a dollar or two a week by determining which butterfat content is right for their needs.

Here are some guidelines for milk that may help you weigh one value against the other.

1. Whole milk. It has approximately 3.25% butterfat present, evenly dispersed through the milk by the process of homogenization. And all the whole milk we sell is fortified with Vitamin D. You get about 160 calories per 8-ounce glass.
2. Skim milk. It has all the nutrients of whole milk except for fat, which is cut to a maximum of 0.5%. An 8-ounce glass contains 90 calories.
3. 1% milk. Our own Look-Fit brand fortified with Vitamin A & D. 114 calories per 8-ounce glass.
4. 2% milk. When fresh whole milk and skimmed milk are mixed together you get 2% butterfat content. Like whole milk, it is also fortified with Vitamin D.
5. Instant Nonfat Dry Milk. Using nonfat dry milk offers the greatest possibility for saving money. All the protein, minerals, and most of the vitamins of the fluid milk are retained, and it is fortified with vitamins A & D. It has the advantages of needing no refrigeration in dry form, of easy storage and of mixing and measuring easily. When reconstituted, it has 0.1% butterfat and contains 90 calories per 8-ounce glass.

St. Stanislaus Rocks make a point of which way they are headed.

Anticipation

The Harrison Central Red Rebels anticipate a rebound. Unfortunately for Red Rebel fans, however, the Rebels did not play up to expectation. The tournament favorites lost to Stone 79-76.

Rock crushes Stone, 80-49

BY DAVID PIERSON
In the game of "Scissors-paper, paper-covers-rock, rock-breaks-scissors" there was no answer for "Rock-meets-Stone." That, however, has been resolved as follows: Rock crushes Stone, 80-49.

In the finals of the Bay High Tournament, Saturday, the St. Stanislaus Rocks outbounded, outshot, and outplayed Stone, upset winner over tournament favorite Harrison Central. Robert Smith of St. Stanislaus led all scorers with 22 points. Bud Lang and Will Marler contributed 19 and 17 points to the Rock cause.

Appraising his team's hot 56 percent shooting from the floor in the finals, Rock Coach Bob Cuccaro said, "We took fine percentage shots. We were able to penetrate and get the close-in shots." The Rocks were also able to get the close-in shots in its two other tournament contests, hitting on more than half its shots in both those games.

The Rocks made few mistakes in the tournament, and almost none in the finals. The closest any team came to toppling the championship express was when Jack Lewis of Hancock North Central intercepted an errant Rock pass and drove in to tie the score at 44-44 in the third quarter of the semi-finals. But St. Stanislaus reeled off 12 unanswered points and pulled away to win 62-51. The finals was no contest.

Harrison Central won the girls' crown with its sixth win of the season over the Long Beach Bearkittens 45-40. Unlike the previous meetings, however, the Bearkittens were not counted out of the game until the last minute when Red Rebelettes hit on five of six free throws.

Meg Taylor of Harrison Central led all scorers with 15 points. Debbie Boyd of Long Beach tallied 12.

The Boys All-tournament team members were as follows: Robin Malley, Pass High; Kenny Scruggs, Harrison Central; Clarence Hargett, Bay High; Jimmy Nelson, Long Beach; Gary Necaise and Jack Lewis, Hancock North Central; Luther Monroe and Wendell Weathers, Stone; and Robert Smith and Will Marler, St. Stanislaus.

The Girls team included: Patricia Shiyou, OLA; Connie Payne, Bay High; Sheryl Davis, Stone; Connie Winstead, Pass High; Nat Malley, Hancock North Central; Kim Binderwald, Andrew Jackson; Linda Ladner and Sheri McCook, Long Beach; Kathy Faulk and Renee Rutland, Harrison Central.

OLA won the girls sportsmanship trophy and Hancock North Central, the boys.

Pirates succumb to Tigers, 69-67

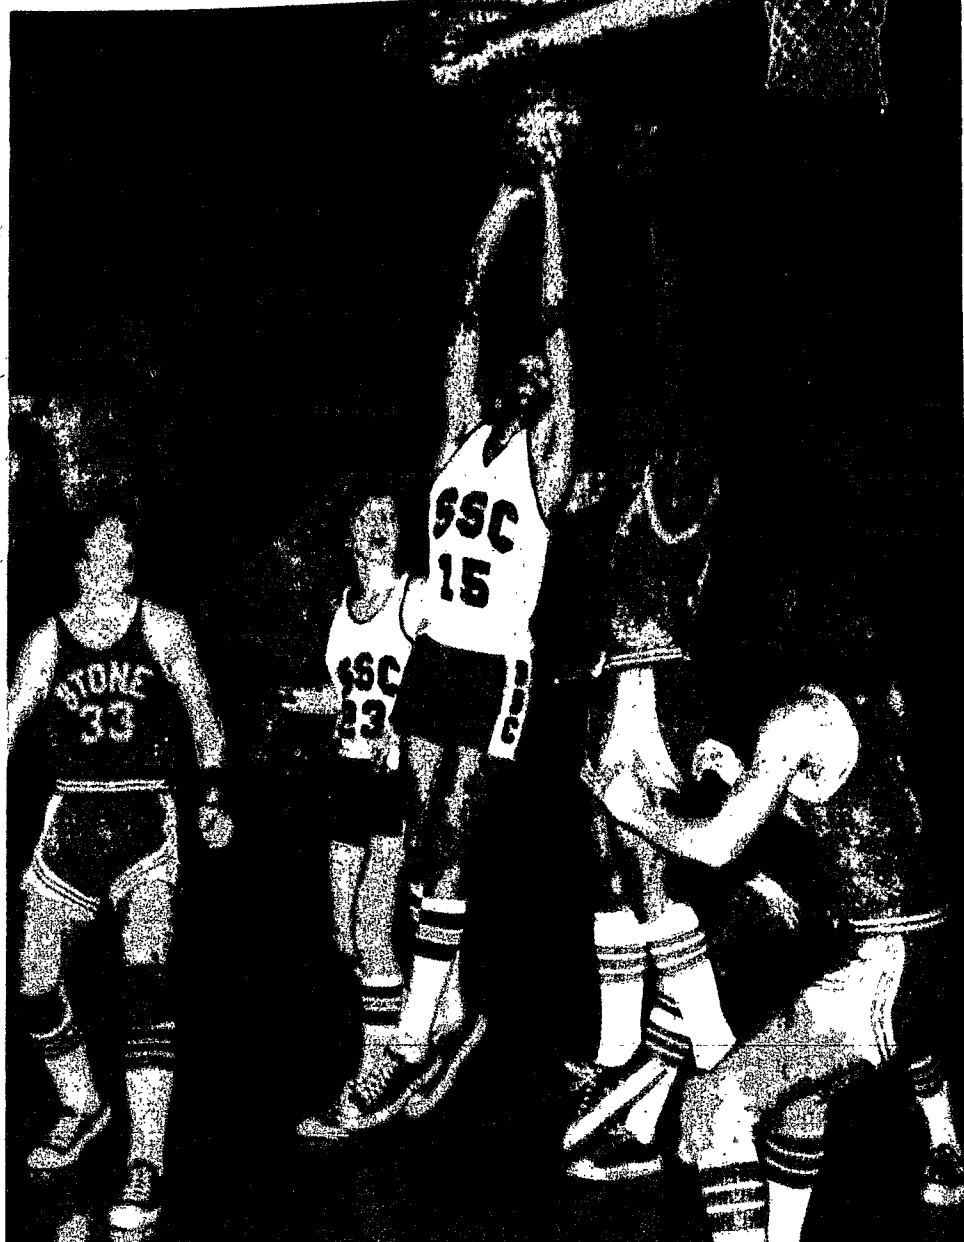

The Bay High Tigers, out pressed and out hustled the Pass Christian Pirates at Tiger Stadium Tuesday night to grab a 69-67 win over the talented Pirate team. The win boosted the Tigers record to 10-9 going into this week's tournament play in the Gulf Coast Conference.

Tiger forward Tom Barrett led the Tiger bench with 21 points, followed by Paul Saucier with 13 and Clarence Hargett with 11.

"We were very fortunate to take this one," Coach Mike

Necaise commented after the game. "The press was the difference. I feel like this has kept us in a lot of games this year."

The Tigerettes also got back on the winning track with a convincing 57-41 win over the girls of Pass. The Tigerettes were eliminated by Long Beach last Friday night in the girls' semi-final round of the Bay High Invitational after defeating Our Lady's Academy in the Wednesday opener 57-13.

Mr. Everywhere

Robert Smith (15) drives through the Stone Tomcat defense for two more in the finals of the Bay High Tournament. Smith led all scorers with 22 points.

Bay High, 57-13

In Wednesday's opener of the Bay High Invitational Basketball Tournament, the Hancock North Central Hawkettes defeated the defending champions, Stone County, 57-13 in the first of two games. The Hawkettes led throughout the game but had to fight off a fourth quarter Tomkitten rally. Natalie Malley was high scorer for Hancock with 15 points.

The Bay High Tigerettes jumped out to a 35-7 halftime lead over Our Lady's Academy and then coasted to a 57-13 win in the second game of the night. Prima Luke of the Tigerettes led all scorers with 12.

In the boys game, Stone County downed the Long Beach Bearcats 57-41. Stone raced to a 16-3 first period lead behind the sharp shooting of Luther Monroe who scored six of the Tomcats eight points. That lead held throughout the rest of the game.

Tomcat Peter Sala and Jimmy Nelson of Long Beach shared scoring honors with 15 points each.

Hancock North Central Coach Roland Ladner and Bay High Coach Mike Necaise enjoy a few moments together appraising their two teams just before the Hawks and Tigers mixed it up in the Bay High Invitational tournament Thursday night.

Hancock, 84-67

Harrison, 41-28

The Harrison Central Red Rebellettes moved into the semi-finals by beating Andrew Jackson of Chalmette, La. 41-28. Harrison Central built up a 29-9 halftime but had to stave off a second half surge by Andrew Jackson. Harrison Central's Patricia Clark, the only player in double figures, scored 16 points.

Long Beach and Pass High traded leads throughout the second girls game. Long Beach led at the quarter 10-8, but Pass led at the half 22-21. Extending its lead to 35-32 at the end of the third quarter, the Bearkittens hung on to win 46-40.

Long Beach and Pass High traded leads throughout the second girls game, with Long Beach coming out on top, 46-40. Long Beach led 10-8 at the end of the first quarter, but Pass moved ahead 22-21 at the half. The Bearkittens retook the lead in the third quarter and hung on for the win.

Sheri McCook and Debbie Boyd, both of Long Beach, scored 14 points. Lena Dedeaux led the Pass scorers with 12.

In a rematch of a game earlier in the week, St. Stanislaus continued its mastery of the Pass High Pirates with a convincing 80-56 win. Four Stanislaus players scored in double

Stone, 79-76

Long Beach, 39-30

In girls semi-final action, the Bay High Tigerettes fell behind Long Beach in the first quarter and never recovered, losing 39-30. Linda Ladner of Long Beach led all scorers with 18 points.

In the other girls semi-final game, the Harrison Central Rebellettes nipped Hancock North Central 36-33. Harrison Central led 24-19 at the half, but the Hawkettes cut the lead to 30-27 in the third period. Nancy Faulk led all scorers with 11 points.

The Stone County Tomcats upset tournament favorite, Harrison Central 79-76 in a see-saw battle. The Red Rebels led 21-15 at the end of the first quarter, but Stone erupted in the second quarter to take a 44-40 halftime lead. Harrison Central evened the game in the third quarter, but Wendell Weathers of Stone hit on four free throws in the final 46 seconds to eliminate the Rebels.

The St. Stanislaus-Hancock North Central game was also decided at the free-throw line with the Rock-a-chaws hitting on 16 of 24 foul shots. The Rocks held a slim lead for most of the game, but with less than a minute left in the third quarter the Hawks tied the game at 44-44.

The Hawks, however, did not hit on another field goal until there were only two minutes left in the game.

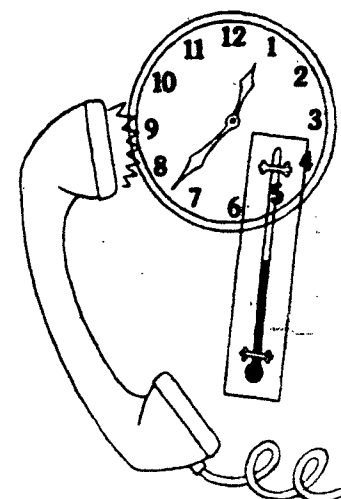

Will Marler and Robert Smith of St. Stanislaus led all scorers with 21 and 20 points. Guy Necaise led the Hawks with 15.

Carey to hold homecoming

Homecoming activities at William Carey College are scheduled February 7-8, prior to the basketball clash between the Carey College Crusaders and Montevallo.

Hundreds of alumni from across the South are expected to gather on the Hattiesburg campus for the re-dedication of Tatum Court. Having undergone a one-half million dollar renovation, the old administration building will be the scene for an openhouse on Homecoming afternoon from 4-5:30 p.m.

Registration is scheduled for February 8 at 10:30 in the new John D. and Ollie Thomas Business Administration Building.

The annual alumni Homecoming luncheon is scheduled for 12:30 in Wilkes Dining Hall. Reservations must be made through the alumni office, but tickets may be purchased at the door.

During the luncheon hour the "Alumnus of the Year", as well as the class attendance award, will be presented.

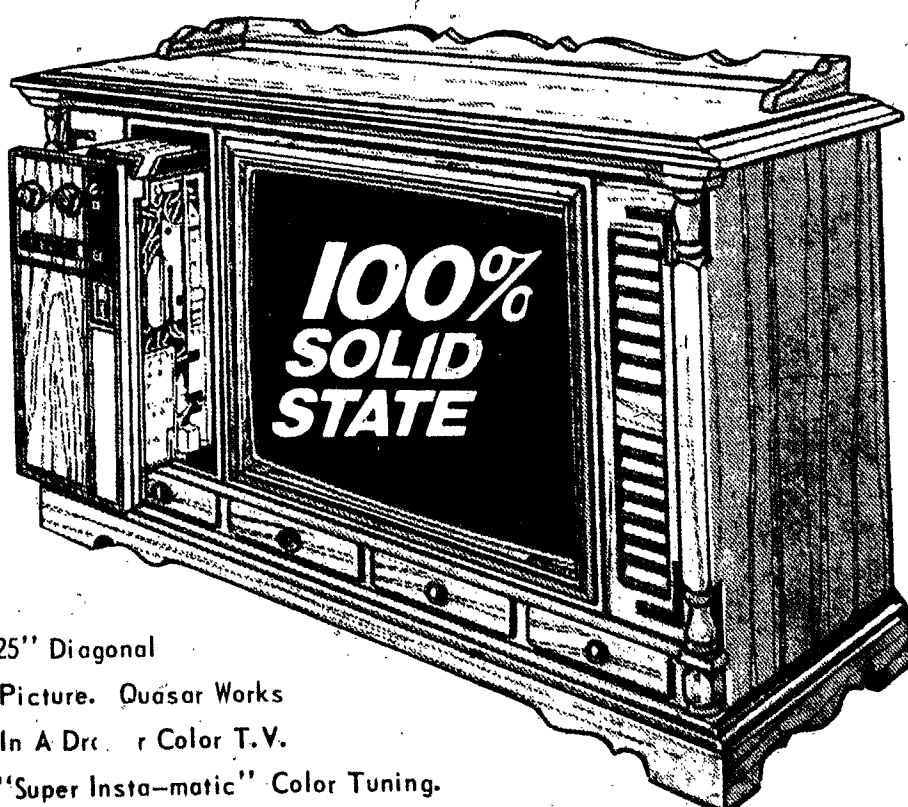

The Carey College Crusaders will play Montevallo in the Homecoming Basketball game at 6:30 p.m. in Clinton Gym. During halftime ceremonies, the Homecoming Queen and Court will be presented. Following the game, the SGA will present a concert, featuring Ian Thomas in Thomas Fine Arts Auditorium.

A special pre-Homecoming feature will be an Old-Timers basketball game February 7 at 7 p.m. in Clinton Gym. According to Coach John Stephenson, approximately 40 former Crusaders will be on hand. Weather permitting, an Old-Timers baseball game will be played February 8 at 8 a.m. prior to the Homecoming activities.

The weather for the past week has been on and off, that is, a cold front came down, and it was followed by a warm trend which furnished a few days of perfect weather. The only drawback was that the water moved everywhere was on the bad side, making both salt and fresh water fishing not too good.

Of course some speckle trout were caught here and there, but green trout (bass) fishing wasn't too good due to low tides which have been that way for the past four months. Normal tides rise in the morning and fall in the afternoon.

There can be too low a tide which causes the fish to go to deeper water. Then and only then can they be caught on deep going baits.

After February we will have warmer weather and bass and perch will begin hitting on the surface.

These conditions happen every year at this time. Better fishing will be coming up.

The greater part of hunting season is over. Rabbits may be hunted with guns during open seasons on any game.

The Woodcock and Snipe seasons are still open. Had a few reports on them being killed.

Louis Deceall and Hoke Oden killed some snipe Saturday. Said they found quite a few of them. These hunters hunt most everything.

Quail hunting runs into February. This type hunting is one of the highest. Good bird dogs are a necessity. Lack of cover crops is a disadvantage. More on this later.

Was with regret we learned of the death of M-Sgt. Claude Tracey, 55, last Tuesday. He was a resident of Waveland, a fisherman, and a real sport in general. Sympathy is extended to members of his family.

Also met Andrew E. Stokely, Sr. His hobby is bowling, and he claims to have a 257 average. Andrew takes care of repairs for the City of New Orleans Department of Property Management.

Old timers will remember Stokely's wharf and Ice House. He is a member of that family.

Saw quite a number of Robins the past week. They are the most common native birds of the east and migrate South each year. Robins are considered a song bird, and it is against the law to kill them.

Was talking to Dan B. Murphy. He has five sons who are all hunters and fishermen. They kill anything that roams the woods, and catch all kinds of fish. According to Dan, they have plenty game and fish for the table. Kinder nice, ain't it?

Dan himself is a natural born sport. The old saying applies here, "Like father, like son."

Carl Richardson lives in New Orleans and comes to the Bay quite often. I think he is better known as "Kagie". His brothers are Chep, Pete, and Manuel. His hobbies are fishing and hunting. He took after his father and mother when it came to those sports.

The St. Stanislaus Alumni Association held the annual alumni reunion Saturday, January 25, 1975 at the Fontainebleau Motor Hotel in New Orleans. A large crowd of members attended from Bay St. Louis, and an enjoyable program was provided.

Bub Genin and Donald Carr are two of our speckle trout fishermen. Recently they brought home their share of the finny tribe. Their favorite way of getting them is by trolling and casting.

Hate to report the death of Wm. George Goelzenleuchter last Saturday. He was a butcher at Pitalo's Supermarket. Bill was a fine guy and a good sport. Sympathy is extended to his family.

Alden Mauffray is doing fine after his operation. Back at the store but unable to go fishing yet. We'll get them later, partner!

Kinder early to talk about soft shell crabbing. It is fun for the whole family and starts in March, conditions prevailing. We started soft shell crabbing years ago with an old time kerosene burning flambeau. Good but mighty dirty, remember?

Things have changed but not the time for getting them. It is still done at night with a modern Coleman light.

March and April are the best months for these delicacies. Get ready and go. You'll be glad you did. Help on the family budget too.

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK — Daniel B. Murphy is a good talker, fisherman, and hunter from a few years back. He is constantly bragging about his boys, and has a right to.

PRC scouting Mike Magee

Pearl River Junior College's newly elected head coach, J.C. Arban, is scouting several high school footballers, and high on the list of prospects is Bay High Quarterback Mike Magee.

J.C. Arban, who is a former USM coach, said that PRC is courting Magee as a possible future scholarship athlete.

But right now, Arban's main concern must be the small turnout for spring football practice. There are 26 players returning from last year's squad and 12 walk-ons trying for a position on the team.

Due to the small number of players involved in the spring drills, no spring game or scrimmage is planned for the end of the practice season.

Favorites play tonight

The St. Stanislaus boys and the St. Martin girls, the coaches' favorites to win the Pascagoula River Conference Tournament, move into action tonight at the Vancleave gym.

The St. Martin girls play Sacred Heart at 5:30 p.m. with the winner advancing to semi-finals Friday night.

The Notre Dame boys will take on St. John's tonight at 6:45 with St. Stanislaus scheduled to play at 8 against D'Iberville, a 56-52 winner over East Central Tuesday.

The girls semi-finals will be played Friday at 4:30 and 7 p.m. with finals scheduled for 6:45 Saturday night. The boys semi-finals Friday are scheduled for 5:45 and 8:15 p.m., and the finals slated for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Free tax preparation by IRS is available

JACKSON. — Taxpayers filing Form 1040, with adjusted gross income of $20,000 or less, who take the standard deduction, can have the IRS compute their tax, William Daniel, IRS District Director for Mississippi, said today. This service will be performed for taxpayers whose income is solely from wages, salary and tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities, he said.

"Those persons choosing to file the First Form 1040A can have the IRS compute the tax regardless of the amount of adjusted gross," Daniel added.

To take advantage of this service, taxpayers need only we have in talent," said Arban, "but the attitude of the boys and the coaching staff is really great."

"Right now we are in the learning process," Arban said, "but after we install our offense and work on the defense, I'll know more about our capabilities." Arban has said, however, that he is particularly impressed with the play of his line.

volunteer-force concept. Recruiting figures began to plummet.

Then came the end of fiscal year 1974. Surprisingly the Army turned itself around and slightly exceeded its annual objective.

Today recruiting objectives are still being achieved on a monthly basis, but the Army isn't resting on its laurels. Looking for constant improvement in its life-style and personnel, the Army has recently initiated an expanded in-service educational program for soldiers who wish to pursue a college education.

It's called Project AHEAD. Project AHEAD works in this manner: a high school senior or graduate visits a local Army recruiter who explains Project AHEAD and the benefits of an Army enlistment. If the interested applicant qualifies for Army service, he or she is referred to a list of Project AHEAD schools, including some of the finest colleges, universities, technical and vocational schools in the country. Each college or university owns and operates its own program and the applicant must qualify under the requirements determined by the school. The school appoints an academic advisor who will counsel the soldier-student throughout his Army tour. Having taken on-post courses, the soldier-student may return to his chosen school and finish his degree requirements after completing his Army service. The Army is able to tap a pool of bright and highly motivated young people who will assist in the operation of a technically sophisticated Army. The schools gain access to a body of students who can be planned upon for future enrollment purposes. The soldier-student gets a life-time skill and an opportunity to achieve academic goals. Project AHEAD is one approach to further Army enlistments that may keep an all voluntary Army a reality.

Continuous 1975 Price Rise Predicted For Retail Foods

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Reflections of the 1974 food market and projections for 1975 are announced by Ann Rushing, food marketing specialist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

In 1974, the retail food price index averaged about 13 per cent above the 1973 index, and during the first six months of this year, the food price index will probably continue to rise. However, this movement will be dependent upon the effect of the new crops. Increases are likely to average about 12 per cent above those a year ago. This rise should spread over a broad range of foods rather than concentrate on any single category. While some of the rise will be due to higher farm prices, more may come from increases in marketing costs.

Retail beef costs are expected to be lower this year than they were in the first half of 1974. This is largely due to increased supplies of beef. Pork prices are expected to be above last year's and slightly higher than this fall's, reflecting the drop in pork production. Fish prices should be about the same or slightly lower than a year ago due to large frozen stocks. Broiler prices during the first quarter of 1975 are expected to be above year-earlier prices. Egg prices, too, will rise during the first quarter then experience a seasonal decline from April until June, before increasing again. Dairy prices are not expected to change much from now through mid-year, projected Mrs. Rushing.

The expected large citrus crop may help to keep fresh fruit prices at attractive levels, but fresh vegetable prices will average slightly higher than they were in the first half of 1974. Potato prices will probably be down somewhat from the early 1974 prices. Retail prices of major food fats during 1975 are expected to average slightly above 1974 prices. Cereal and bakery product will not rise as rapidly in 1975 as in 1974. However, prices will be dependent upon world demand and the grain crop this spring in the southern hemisphere and this autumn in the northern hemisphere. Coffee prices will be about the same this year as in 1974.

"Consumer demand is not likely to increase in 1975, as it has in the past few years because of inflationary pressure on personal incomes. The real income level has fallen during the past few quarters and will probably continue to fall in the near future," commented Mrs. Rushing.

Don't deduct rebate, IRS director advises

JACKSON, Mississippi — William Daniel, IRS District Director for Mississippi, today advised taxpayers not to deduct on their 1974 income tax returns the tax rebate proposed by the President on January 13, which has yet to be enacted by Congress. Returns should be prepared and filed according to the instructions that come with the tax forms and "without regard to any rebate or similar plans now being proposed."

Daniel explained that the plan proposed by the President calls for an automatic rebate based on a percentage of the taxpayer's tax liability for 1974. The amount of such a rebate can be determined by the IRS only after it receives and processes the taxpayer's return filed in accordance with the instructions that come with the tax forms. Any rebate adjustment made by a taxpayer will only serve to delay processing and issuance of the rebate.

Emphasizing that possible rebates being considered have no bearing on any tax refunds already due taxpayers for 1974, Daniel said that persons expecting refunds have an added incentive to file early. Refunds can be issued to early filers within four or five weeks after a return is received by the IRS, while it may take up to eight weeks to issue refunds to those who file close to the April 15 deadline.

Taxpayers who move from the address shown on their income tax return should promptly file a change of address notice.

Teacher attends Reading Council

Brother Canisius Schell, S.C. will represent St. Stanislaus at the annual Mississippi State Reading Council meeting at Hinds Junior College on February 8.

Brother Canisius is currently teaching in the St. Stanislaus elementary reading lab and holds memberships in the International Reading Association and the Association for Children With Learning Difficulties.

Dr. Dorothy Bracken, head of the Southern Methodist University reading department, will be the featured speaker. Her topic will deal with current trends in the teaching of reading. There will also be group meetings covering the reading continuum from early childhood through college.

Governor urges motorists shop for cheaper gas

Governor Bill Waller has urged Mississippi motorists to begin a selective buying campaign again to bring down the price of gasoline. The Governor said a statewide survey of retail gas outlets last week revealed prices for regular gas varied from 48.9 cents to 62.9 cents at pumps in the State.

Waller said a national brand in Jackson was retailing regular gas at 57.9 cents. He said the wholesale price on this brand is 41.1 cents.

Waller said, "I believe the supply of gasoline is adequate and I think Mississippians should start making the laws of supply and demand work by shopping for cheaper gas."

KINDERGARTENS RATED TOPS

The Governor's Committee for Children and Youth has announced its legislative priorities for the current legislative session, with kindergartens listed at the top.

"We are not endorsing any one specific bill," said Committee Chairman Dr. Noel Womack of Jackson, "but we do endorse and recommend kindergartens for Mississippians."

He said that 13 percent of the State's first graders have to repeat that grade each year, at a cost to the State of $3,000,000 a year for the second time in that grade.

Dr. Womack said the Committee also endorsed in House Bill 17 and in Senate Bill 2158, both of which integrate career education into the curriculum at grade one.

DEEP-WATER PORT CONSIDERED

Governor Waller Tuesday signed a letter of intent with a New Orleans firm for possible construction of a $189 million deep-water port off the Mississippi-Alabama Coast.

The Governor said the letter was signed last week following several hours of conference with officials of SPLITT, Ltd., Attorney General A. F. Summer, representatives of various groups in Jackson County, and other State officials.

Waller said that Alabama Governor George Wallace signed a similar letter with the firm December 20, 1974.

Mississippi and Alabama had signed a pact November 10, 1972, creating the Ameraport Council, to jointly pursue development of the proposed port which would be located in the Gulf midway between Mobile and Pascagoula.

SAFETY INSTRUCTORS MEET

The Mississippi Game and Fish Commission has announced that training workshops for Mississippi hunter safety instructors will be conducted in Lee, Panola, Scott, Forrest and Pike counties during the next two months.

A Commission spokesman said that the courses were scheduled for Tombigbee State Park, January 24-25; John Kyle State Park, January 31-February 1; Roosevelt State Park, February 14-15; Paul B. Johnson State Park, February 21-22 and Percy Quinn State Park, March 7-8.

FUNDS AVAILABLE

Funds are still available to publicly-owned water supply systems for the purchase and installation of fluoridation equipment, according to Dr. Aaron Trubman, Director of Public Health Dentistry for the State Board of Health.

"These funds are available to water systems on a 50-50 matching basis through a grant from the Mississippi Regional Medical Program," Dr. Trubman said. "The grants are not to exceed $5,000."

Dr. Trubman said that the Mississippi Regional Medical Program (MRMP) through its regional advisory council directs funding to meet identified Mississippi needs while acting as an intermediary funding agency of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

SEMINARS FOR MANAGERS

The Mississippi Park Commission and the R&D Center are co-sponsoring seminars "to continue the professionalization of our State park managers," according to Dr. Robert D. Smith, R&D Center Senior Research Analyst and Seminar Project Director.

The three-day meetings are being held in two sessions, with 25 park managers and assistant managers attending.
